Experience with the resource:

My experience on the Getty Research Institute website was pleasant and productive. The side bar made it extremely easy to search up and access different artists biographies and the history behind their artwork. This website gives so many useful links to various books and articles in order to help build your research. To make it even more useful there is a link of archived photos where you can search up any art piece in history and view when and where it was created, what materials were used, and the subject of the art piece. If I was to ever need to do research on artists throughout history I would definitely go through this website.
